A numbered horn edition, built in Hope.

EARF makes hi-fi and light in San Francisco, in cast acrylic tinted all the way through, in eight colors from Ember to Smoke. Tropos is a powered horn loudspeaker; Mantle, a record player whose plinth floats over a base lit at its edge; Hemisphere, a pendant; Core, a cordless table lamp. The first pair of Tropos played for the first time at our debut in San Francisco on 19 January 2027, in FOG Design+Art week.

WHAT WE PROPOSE

A Klipsch × EARF edition of a Heritage model, built by Klipsch in Hope, with an EARF cast-acrylic horn surround, baffle or stands in one of our tints: about 100 numbered pairs. EARF sells it direct in the United States; Klipsch dealers sell it everywhere else, as with the kO-R2.

WHY KLIPSCH

- The kO-R1 (2024): 100 pairs at $8,498, built in Hope with Devon Turnbull of OJAS, and sold out.
- The kO-R2 (2026): 600 numbered pairs at $11,998, “handcrafted in Hope”, “sold direct from Ojas” in the US, through authorized retailers in Europe, launched at Milan Design Week with USM and Karimoku.
- Klipsch’s sound in other people’s objects and rooms: La-Z-Boy’s AudioLuxe furniture, and the Equipment Room at Hotel Magdalena, Austin (October 2026).
- EARF brings what OJAS brought: a designer’s object, a color, a room to launch it in. The tint is new.

KLIPSCH BRINGS

- The Heritage model and its engineering
- The build in Hope: quality, warranty, certification
- Its dealers outside the US
- Its press, and a show stand

EARF BRINGS

- The acrylic parts’ design, drawn and specified
- The eight tints, and approval of each cast
- The US direct channel and the launch: a listening room, a Session record
- The design press (Wallpaper*, Dezeen, Core77 on our list)

How it could work.

An outline to discuss, not an offer. The ranges are those typical in published sources for licensed and co-branded design (furniture, lighting, consumer products); none of it is agreed, and every line is for counsel.

| TERM | IN OUTLINE |
|---|---|
| Structure | Klipsch builds. EARF buys finished pairs at a transfer price and sells them direct in the US, keeping the retail margin; Klipsch's dealers sell elsewhere. FOR COUNSEL |
| Royalty | On Klipsch's own sales: 3–7% of net wholesale, 5% common for consumer products. Net defined, with listed deductions only. FOR COUNSEL |
| Fee | A development fee for the design work, recoupable against royalty. Advances in this field are small or none. FOR COUNSEL |
| Edition | About 100 numbered pairs, capped; the tint and the numbering EARF's to approve. FOR COUNSEL |
| Control | EARF approves color, material and finish, and the use of its name; credit on the product. FOR COUNSEL |
| Term | 1–3 years, renewable; a sell-off of 30–180 days; rights revert if not launched in 12–18 months. FOR COUNSEL |
| Prices | A suggested retail price only: a licensor can't set resale prices in California. FOR COUNSEL |
| Reports | Quarterly statements, about three months in arrears; audit rights. FOR COUNSEL |

When.

| FROM THE DEBUT | WHAT |
|---|---|
| The debut, 19 January | The first pair plays; photographed and filmed |
| 1–4 weeks after | This letter, with the photographs and a short listening video |
| About 12 weeks after | A meeting at Milan Design Week, 13–18 April, where the kO-R2 launched |
| About 16 weeks after | HIGH END, Vienna, 6–9 May: the pair measured and heard |
| Then | If both want it: design and tooling, about 12–18 months to an edition |

What we'd send next

Photographs and a short film from the debut; drawings of the parts we'd design; samples of the eight tints in cast sheet; an edition sheet with sizes, colors and lead times.

What stays EARF's own

Tropos, Mantle and the tint system. An edition is designed around them and licensed for its own run; nothing here licenses EARF's products or its colors beyond it.
